

Commission on Child Abuse and Missing Children

A great opportunity to help children, youth, and parents of abused and missing children.

What is CCAMC?

The Middlesex County Commission on Child Abuse and Missing Children (CCAMC) develops and conducts activities and events that educate the public and increase awareness about child abuse and missing children.

We would like to increase our membership, particularly volunteers in the County with backgrounds in the Education sector, Law Enforcement, and concerned parents. Your support and involvement in CCAMC will help educate and improve the lives of abused children and their parents and the parents of missing children. For more information on committees or membership, please contact The Office of Human Services at 732-745-4186.

When are meetings held?

Meetings are held on the third tuesday of the month.

Who is involved?

Individuals in the education sector, law enforcement, and concerned parents.
